THE METZGEREI
and its soul

Right up to the early 1980s, the Art Nouveau building at Rheinparkstrasse 4 in the Lindenhof district was home to the butcher shop, METZGEREI HENNINGER. The building itself and the butcher shop always belonged together.

Retaining the spirit and the history of days and times long gone, Thomas Schmitt and Joachim Linus Weber decided to exploit the attractive location on the banks of the Rhine as a public venue once again and open a bistro and wine bar, retaining the original name, THE METZGEREI.

As befits a former butcher shop, it is all about the freshness and quality of the food and drinks but also about a convivial atmosphere focussing primarily on the guests themselves.

The edgy ambience, designed with loving attention to detail, rekindles memories of visits to the butcher shop in days gone by – in a fresh and inviting re-interpretation.

Welcome to THE METZGEREI!

Thomas Schmitt and Joachim Linus Weber

A detailed painting of a social gathering. In the foreground, a table is set with a large, round, multi-layered cake on a white stand, a bottle of wine, and various dishes. A woman in a white dress with black polka dots and a black choker is looking towards the camera. In the background, a man in a grey suit and hat is visible. The scene is set in a room with a patterned rug and a large painting on the wall.
